MOSQUE BATTLE JUST WON'T GO AWAY

Jewish group threatening protests

BY JOAN RANSBERRY
Staff Writer

The controversy over Newmarket's first mosque continues to rage.

Although Newmarket council gave the mosque the go-ahead Monday, some residents continue to raise concerns about its leader, Zafar Bangash, who is renowned for his anti-American and anti-Israeli opinions.

The debate has also caught the attention of the Jewish Defense League, an international Jewish organization.

The group plans to stage a "series of protests" about the decision at Newmarket town hall, complete with placards, according to national director Meir Weinstein.

ZAFAR BANGASH: Imam attended council meeting to hear politicians approve a site plan agreement to build a mosque.
